November Curriculum

I have to admit I'm grieving "normal" even more this month than I have since school started, and I'm sure next month will feel the same! Normally this month we get to make applesauce, apple pies, and vegetable soup, we also normally eat pumpkin pie the day before Thanksgiving break; with the COVID guidelines we are not allowed to do these things this year. It just stinks, and I hate it! So, I would encourage you guys, if you have time between older children's school lessons, and working from home, to do a little additional cooking and baking this month. With the holidays and cold weather approaching there's nothing like the comfort of warm homemade soup and pie! Baking with kids is a great way to reinforce both math and literacy skills.

So instead of food and nutrition being the focus of our curriculum this month we will focus on being thankful. What does it mean to be thankful, and how can we show our thankfulness? We will, as always, also be working on literacy, math and cognitive assessments. We are hoping to continue to be outside as much as possible, so bundling your kiddos up is especially important! There are a few of you who have not turned in hats and gloves, we need those ASAP. And last call for family photos, we will be putting together a family wall very soon and would like to have every child represented.

Adventure Day - November 9th

Adventure Day is at LBA Park this month. I will post the drop off and pick-up location on the calendar n the website.

Scholastic Book Orders

A few times a year we do scholastic book orders, I like to be intentional and host one right before Christmas so you can buy books for the kids if you'd like. To order go to <https://clubs.scholastic.com/home> Our classroom code is J8KB2. Books are shipped here and when they arrive I package them up in brown paper bags so that the kids can't see them
